

Parents Choosing Courage

Another 12 week parenting class ended in January that Genesis Institute offers throughout the year. As the 10 parents departed the last evening, I was struck at how rich that time had been. Parents openly shared how the group was very supportive for them and that this class gave them hope as they struggled with their kids. Parents finding hope and support go on to use their influence in the sometimes messy and confusing battle for their kids' hearts and minds.

So I am excited to report that another Courageous Parenting class will be held at Northwest Christians School the first week of February. This will be our first time that Genesis has become involved in a school partnership that we hope will be longstanding. A two-hour seminar was held recently on the school property for parents whose children attend NWC School.

From the incredible response we received back it looks as if another class will soon begin the journey into love and humility. And daring to challenge themselves as parents to seek truth and love that is only found in Jesus Christ.

Please pray for these parents as they undertake one of the most difficult journeys they will ever face.
